

The Inner and Outer of Evolutionary Leadership

3 Session Series

With Tenneson Woolf and Kinde Nebeker

MANY OF US INTUITIVELY KNOW that heroic, solo leadership is no longer enough. No one person can do what is needed. Many of us know that the world and its institutions are evolving — we need people who feel an evolutionary imperative in their bones and are willing to work together to make a difference, right where they are.

Leadership today (we define leaders as anyone who wants to make a difference) requires a firm grasp on both the inner and the outer: the inner of personal presence and grounding, and the outer of collaborative process and collective intelligence.

The Inner and Outer of Evolutionary Leadership Series

(IOEL) includes an overarching intention of expanding perspectives, developing applicable skills, cultivating community among participants, and growing courage for personal action within an evolutionary leadership framework.

Each session will involve checking-in to begin, short teaches on materials, responding to a pre-reading assignment, engaging one another, harvesting learnings, and checking-out to close.

Session 1 Presence: The Inner Work of Showing Up

Session 2 Engaging With Others: The Outer Work of Leading Through Hosting and Convening

Session 3 Integration: Essential Evolutionary Leadership Practice In These Times
