

Convening People is an Art - The Circle Way

November 21, 2016 – 9:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.
A One Day Workshop on The Circle Way with Quanita Roberson, Tenneson Woolf

Many of us are learning about participative leadership these days. Getting people involved. Going together, not alone. We're learning about doing the right thing, respecting tradition, and yet evolving edges. Many people are learning about essential connection, clarity, and conversation as an essential way to grow the communities and organizations we want.

The Circle Way is a root methodology for convening. It is minimal structure, but essential practice for turning to one another in groups of all sizes.

- ▶ To go deeper and get smarter together.
- ▶ To build support and trust.
- ▶ To find ease, even fun.
- ▶ To influence policy and create attractive futures.

Quanita and Tenneson have been key teaching and learning partners since 2013. They each bring 20+ years of experience, working with leaders to remember a core competency of turning to one another.
